

I feel that I have the right to not be annoyed in my own home. I am neither stupid nor invalid, If I wanted to subscribe , buy or another way be exposed to consumerism I would go to a mall or similar. I do not appreciate that in the middle of dinner, nor when I am busy working elsewhere in my home, that the phone rings with no one but a modern day version of a door to door salesperson. Door to door solicitation is banned in most communities - is it right that these people continue to annoy our citizens , depriving them of true privacy in their own homes? Any and all legislation to ban telemarketing as well as internet spamming is not welcome, but demanded in these times -- and it is more than overdue. That this is an issue is to liken it to whether it is ever right to murder someone. WRONG is WRONG!!! And the fact that people have made a living and some careers at this does not sanction it as right. Again you can not imagine the contempt I feel when I get a telemarketer call as I am working on my car or in the basement, etc. and to tell me I do not have to answer-- Is your mother 82 years old? -- then you don't answer to see if she is ok!!!
